Financial crisis and soundness of individual banks and health of the U.S. banking system

by L. Markov

Abstract: The present work deals with the development of an early-warning system that could serve in the future as an automated decision support system for the continuous monitoring and timely identification of weak banks. For doing this the proposed approach is based on a multicriteria decision aid technique (MCDA), which enables the development of additive models for decision making and prediction purposes in a classification setting.

Key words: financial crisis, US financial institutions, MCDA, decision making, early-warning system.
